and rapid identification and management of such patients). Thus, the literature shows us the need for a primary screen program that includes not only laboratory assessment but also a clinical assessment by the physician. The latter can complete a determination of herpetic activity on the basis of epidemiologic information.

As long as individuals and countries do not agree to leave the international system on this point, the current system will continue to be unstable and therefore unpredictable. That is, despite our disagreement on the issue, we agree that the current system is unstable and therefore unpredictable in terms of international security or rights of individuals and nations.
